DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1, 3, 5-7, 13, 15, and 17-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Cigaina WO 01/41671 A2.
3. Cigaina teaches a method/apparatus for gastro-esophageal reflux disease (GERD) of a patient comprising: accessing a juncture of an esophagus and a stomach of the patient on a distal side of a diaphragm of the patient with the esophagus and a fundus of the stomach intersection at a cardiac notch located at an original cardiac notch position; placing a reducing element at the junction with the reducing element selected to reposition the cardiac notch to a repositioned cardiac notch position more distal to a lower esophageal sphincter of the patient and define an extended esophageal portion; wherein the placing includes selecting the element to be selectively adjustable along a length of the element to selectively adjust a volume of the element to form an extended esophagus portion between the original cardiac notch position and the repositioned cardiac notch position; wherein the element includes a material positioned loosely on the esophagus and fundus and the adjusting includes gathering and securing the gathered material along a length of the element; wherein the element is secured to either the esophagus or the stomach to restrict movement of the element relative to a final positioning of the element; wherein the securing includes providing selected areas of the element with tissue in-growth areas (see figs. 2-4); and wherein the element includes a securing member 6 for securing the element.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 2 and 14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Cigaina.

6. Cigaina disclosed the claimed invention except for a plurality of separate elements. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use a plurality of separate elements since it has been held that mere duplication of the essential working parts of a device involves only routine skill in the art. St. Regis Paper Co. v. Bemis Co., 193 USPQ 8.

7. Claims 8-12 and 20-23 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Cigaina in view of Forsell US 2002/0193842 A1.

8. Cigaina teaches a method/apparatus according to the above rejected claims. It should be noted that Cigaina fails to teach placing an implant adjacent an esophagus of the patient to create a restricted region.

9. Forsell teaches a device with a common implant for electrically stimulating the cardia sphincter to increase sphincter tonus. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use the implant of Forsell to allow the patient at any time to control the treatment of heart and reflux disease when various needs arise over a day, so that the patient always is satisfied (pg. 1, [0005]).

10. Cigaina/Forsell teaches the method/apparatus as above, wherein the implant can be actuated to at least partially close the esophagus and abate reflux of contents of a stomach of the patient retrograde with the esophagus; wherein the implant includes actuation an artificial sphincter at least partially surrounding the esophagus to change states from an open state to an at least partially closed state, the artificial sphincter in the open state permitting substantially unimpeded food flow through the esophagus into the stomach, the artificial sphincter in the at least partially closed position at least partially closing the esophagus and abating reflux of contents of the stomach retrograde with the esophagus (pg. 4, [0046]); wherein the actuation of the implant is initiated by the patient (pg. 1 [0001]); and wherein the actuation of the implant is initiated by a controller operatively connected to electrodes and having an input operatively connected to organ sensors (pg. 1, [0012]).

Allowable Subject Matter

11. Claims 4 and 16 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.
